A SHORE THING
After strolling the rocky coves of Esperanza, Savant and Leighton take refuge in a shady beachside cabana.

This is such a treat, and retreat,” Savant says. “It allows us the privacy to reconnect, to have the chance to just look at each other and talk.”
